

BigFoot Alive: AlphaShield's New Wi-Fi Router Covers 1.2M square feet!

Written by Martin Regtien
Dec 09, 2006 at 06:09 PM

Whether this coverage sounds outrageously and dangerously over the top or whether it's marketing speak for "more than adequate" we don't know yet but this latest (and largest) device, the AS 8800, from AlphaShield is the one to get, we reckon.

It's available next month for about $250 and sports 5 Gigabit Ethernet ports with a firewall, USB print server and VPN support.

We hope to bring you the details when we get our own machine soon as we've been enthusiastic about the hardware firewall that the first AlphaShield brought us.

Last Updated (Dec 09, 2006 at 06:27 PM)